A NEW LIGHT ON ENERGY SAVING MEASURES IN HOSPITALITY INDUSTRY -- PART - I

By V. SANKARA NARAYANAN B.E. Former Addl. Chief Engineer TNEB.

The Hospitality Industry people (Hoteliers) may wonder where is the need for them to adopt Energy saving measures to safeguard the fast depletion of fossil energy resources like coal, Oil, Gas and uranium deposits in our country, since their energy consumption is comparatively moderate. A quick glance at the prevailing scenario of the fossil fuel in our nation where the shortage of coal and oil compels us to go for imported coal and oil with the attendant depletion of hard earned Foreign Exchange in dollars, will simply answer to this big question. The need of the hour is that every citizen in Our Nation, inclusive of Hoteliers, should have an awareness about energy conservation and a clear understanding of the present problems and come forward to contribute their mite to change the present scenario by adopting Energy Saving Measures in all areas under their control and also by employing star rated electrical equipment and devices in their premises. This step will certainly supplement the present efforts of Central Government in making the Energy Efficiency as an Energy Source. Before proceeding further, it is preferable to learn Energy, Energy Forms, Energy Conservation, Role of Electrical Energy in Energy transfer, Energy Efficiency and Similar terms / concepts.

1. ENERGY

Energy is the fourth dissension of human living in Our Planet Viz Earth. (the other three are Air (O₂), Water and food) All these four basic elements are the structure of a Table or cot with four legs. Energy is defined as a moving force or field (like Gravity) that supports all our activities in this world. The entire earth is engulfed by Energy. It is in two Categories viz Renewable (It is available either as free flows but seasonal) and Non-Renewable energy sources Natural Sources like sunlight, solar heat, wind and water from rains are renewable sources; non-renewable resources include coal, oil, gas and nuclear power producing materials (Fossil fuels). The point to be stressed here is that all the matter in this world including Human Beings are sources of stored form of energy. That is, energy can be extracted from them whenever a need arises. i.e. humans are converting agent not a creating /destroying agent. Matter and Energy are two sides of a coin. Energy stored in matter can be converted into any other Energy Form. Energy in Matter Energy Form. Though 2/3rd of the earth surface is covered with water. We get fresh water (potable water) only from 1-3 percent of the sources like good water lakes, wells and springs. Like water, though earth is completely covered by matter, we can get the required energy forms quickly and easily only from the fossil fuel sources like coal, lignite, oil and natural gas only. Thus Fossil fuels play an important role in meeting Our Energy requirements and their quick depletion is not desirable not with standing the side effects like pollution, Global warming and climate changes brought by them.

2. CHARACTERISTIC FEATURES OR ENERGY

From any matter, the maximum energy that could be extracted is limited to 30.40 percent only: the rest goes as waste. It may be in any energy form like heat, light, sound, chemical energies. We know that human acts as an Energy converting agent only; not as a creating / destroying agent. He can easily reconvert the converted Energy form into the required Energy form albeit with some losses. The energy extracted from matter is unidirectional: it can never return back to its originating source. Generally Energy forms like wind, heat sunlight are invisible; they can only be felt / experienced.

3. ENERGY CONSERVATION

Safe guarding / storing or conservation of fossil energy sources for future use is generally termed as Energy conservation. It is achieved by Energy saving, Energy efficiency and Energy efficacy measures. The need for energy conservation becomes essential in view of the fact that petroleum sources like oil and gas and coal below the earth's surface will last for another 50 years, 80 years, and 200 years respectively at the present rate of consumption. Thus there lies an immediate need to protect the energy requirements of future generation. As outlined earlier, energy conservation covers all other items like energy efficiency and energy savings in its fold.

4. ENERGY EFFICIENCY

It forms one of the activities under energy conservation. It relates to the beneficial use of any energy form supplied to the consumers. To cite an example, a zero watt incandescent bulb which normally consumes 15 watts can be replaced with a 0.5 watts LED lamp. Then we get the same light effect at reduced energy. That is, without losing our comfort, we can achieve energy savings. The energy saving thus achieved works out to 14.5 watts of electricity. It means that by replacing 15 watts incandescent lamp, we can save 25 grams of coal at the generating station in 1 hour. By replacing One lakh zero watt bulbs nearly 7200 tons of coal can be saved in one year. This example throws adequate light on the significance of energy saving measures to be practiced. It holds good for all electrical equipment and devices.

5. ROLE OF ELECTRICAL ENERGY

here are two kinds of energy forms -- primary and secondary. Heat, light, sound and chemical energy come under the category of primary energy. Electricity comes under the head of secondary form of energy. Electricity normally assist all energy forms and it cannot work on its own without the aid of energy converting equipment and devices like motor (motive power), heater (heating) light, battery and inverter. In reality, it functions only as a courier / transport agent and gets its payment in the form of I²R loss (heat). It is the costliest form of energy transport. Its velocity is nearly 300 million meter per second and it is very clean. In view of its above qualities, it is preferred. But it is a badmaster and a very good servant. It never stops at any place during its journey and it is always on the move. The journey of electricity from the thermal power station to our premises is shown below:

Thermal Power Station			Transmission network			Sub-transmission network			Dist. Network			Consumer premises
Input	Losses	Delivery	Losses	Delivery	Losses	Delivery	Losses	Delivery	Input	Losses	Beneficial use	Input	Losses	Beneficial use
100	75	25	1.3	24	4.5	20	8-10	12	12	2-7	10

Upon receipt of this 12% electrical energy at our door steps, we convert it into required form by using equipment like motor, pump, heater, light, bulbs and fittings. Thus the energy beneficially used by us in the order or in the range of 5 - 10% depending upon our devices. It is easily seen from the above that we are getting only 5-10% of 100% coal energy extracted from the coal at the thermal power station. It simply highlights one watt of energy saved can conserve at least 10 times same energy at the power station in the form of coal. So the problem of energy saving now lies in the domain of consumers. If we could save electricity by adopting energy efficiency measures, we can conserve some quantity of coal, oil, gas, and nuclear materials at the respective power stations. In sum, the human beings (converting agent) need efficient converting tools for changing one energy form to another and also finally make proper use of the energy form thus converted. If anything goes wrong in this process, it will impact the energy sources employed (starting point). In other words, for doing the same work additional quantum of energy sources is required when converted energy is wasted. To define energy efficiency, it can be stated that the same input can be used for getting higher output or for the same output, the input can be reduced. Thus the energy efficiency restricts the fast depletion of valuable energy sources. Figure 2 shows all these.

Its improper use will lead to enhance consumption of natural resources and other adverse side effects

FIGURE 2

In the next article (Part 2), our relationship with nature and the steps involved in the energy conversion process will be dealt with. To be continued.

Tongue Twisters

There once was a man who had a sister, his name was Mr. Fister.
Mr. Fister's sister sold sea shells by the sea shore.
Mr. Fister didn't sell sea shells, he sold silk sheets.
Mr. Fister told his sister that he sold six silk sheets to six shieks.
The sister of Mr. Fister said I sold six shells to six shieks too!

She sells sea shells on the sea shore;
The shells that she sells are sea shells I'm sure.
So if she sells sea shells on the sea shore,
I'm sure that the shells are sea shore shells.
